

January 11, 1995

is attempting to have the body do it. I support his amendment and, Senator Bernard-Stevens, I would like to ask you a question. Were you in the process of trying to work your way through this with somebody or do you want a vote on your amendment?

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: (inaudible)

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Excuse me, Senator, you weren't turned on.

SENATOR LINDSAY: Senator Bernard-Stevens.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: I was turned on...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Your microphone was not activated.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: I resent that, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Your microphone was not activated.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: Thank you. Thank you very much. We'll just bypass that whole conversation, but I am feeling very good right now, if that helps.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: No, my question...

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: What I would like to do is to agree to this amendment so we set the process of what we want to do, then I believe Senator Will is going to, I believe...

SENATOR CHAMBERS: You answered what I asked. I don't want your beliefs and philosophy. You answered my question, thank you.

SENATOR BERNARD-STEVENS: Oh, Senator, when you're turned on you want to do these things but I will yield to the temptation.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But not with me. Mr. President, the point that I wanted to be clear on is that Senator Bernard-Stevens does intend to go forward for a vote on his amendment and I am going to support it and I hope the rest of you will and it will start us in a logical way on revamping this rule which I think is totally inappropriate. But if you're going to do something then at least do it in a way that is rational.

SENATOR LINDSAY: Thank you, Senator Chambers. Senator Bromm.